

FALKIRK ARCHIVES

Records of Organisations

Linlithgow Union Canal Society finding aid

The Linlithgow Union Canal Society, a voluntary body, was founded in 1975 to promote and encourage the restoration and use of the Union Canal, particularly in the vicinity of Linlithgow, West Lothian

The Edinburgh & Glasgow Union Canal was constructed between 1818 and 1822. It ran from Edinburgh to Falkirk where it was joined by a series of locks to the Forth and Clyde Canal. Designed and built by Hugh Baird with advice from Thomas Telford, the canal is famous for having three magnificent aqueducts and Scotland's only canal tunnel.

The records of Linlithgow Union Canal Society are held in their museum.

Reference No	Date	Description
A480.02	1823	Facsimile of "A companion for canal passengers betwixt Edinburgh and Glasgow, giving a complete account of all the interesting objects that are seen along the line of the two canals..." Edinburgh 1823: reprinted 1981 by Linlithgow Union Canal Society